About Sammie Elbertsen

Sammie Elbertsen is a lawyer at AKD who specialises in state aid law and procurement law, with a focus on public-private partnerships. From an administrative law perspective Sammie's work covers, among other things, the funding of companies and regional and national projects, for example in the field of innovative research and the installation of broadband networks.

Sammie's working style is characterised by explaining complex themes in an understandable way. When doing so he outlines a clear picture of both the relevant risks and the possible solutions.
